(8). Silverstone capital Evaluation Stage and Master Stage

- (a). During the Evaluation Stage and Master Stage, you should not exceed the maximum loss limit which is based on a % of the initial account size. You must ensure that the maximum loss does not exceed the maximum loss limit at any given moment.

- (i). The limits for the Evaluation and Master stage:

- (1). 1-Step Model: 6% Maximum loss limit.
- (2). 2-Step Model: 10% Maximum loss limit.
- (3). X Model: 8% Maximum loss limit.
- (4). Zero Model: 5% Maximum trailing loss limit.*

*The Zero Model incorporates a trailing mechanism based on equity, which means that the maximum loss will trail and adjust to the highest equity level reached by the account until a 5% profit is reached. Once the equity is in 5% profit, the maximum loss limit will be locked in at the initial balance.

- (b). During the Evaluation Stage and Master Stage, you should not exceed the maximum daily limit which is based on a % of the starting equity or balance of the day. For the purpose of this rule, the higher value between equity and balance will be used. The Customer must ensure that the maximum daily loss does not exceed the maximum daily loss limit on any given day. The determination of the daily maximum loss will be based on the equity or balance at 00:00 CEST/server time and will remain in effect until the next 00:00 CEST/server time.

- (i). The limits for the Evaluation and Master stage:

- (1). 1-Step Model: 4% Maximum daily loss limit;
- (2). 2-Step Model: 5% Maximum daily loss limit;
- (3). X Model: 4% Maximum daily loss limit;
- (4). Zero Model: 3% Maximum daily loss limit.

- (c). During the Evaluation Stage, you are required to meet specific simulated profit targets based on the initial account size and the model they are following without breaching any rule stated in the T&Cs. The targets are as follows:

- (i). The Student account:

- (1). 1-Step Model: 10% of the initial account size with no time limit;
- (2). 2-Step Model: 8% of the initial account size with no time limit;
- (3). X Model: 10% of the initial account size within 30 calendar days;

- (ii). The Practitioner account

- (1). 2-Step Model: 5% of the initial account size with no time limit;
- (2). X Model: 8% of the initial account size within 30 calendar days;

- (d). You are required to meet specific minimum trading days in each phase. The targets are as follows:

- (i). The Student account:

- (1). 1-Step Model: Minimum of 3 trading days;
- (2). 2-Step Model: Minimum of 3 trading days;
- (3). X Model: Minimum of 3 trading days;

- (ii). The Practitioner account

- (1). 2-Step Model: Minimum of 3 trading days;
- (2). X Model: Minimum of 3 trading days;
- (iii). The Master account:
 - (1). Zero Model: Minimum of 7 profitable days.*

*On the Zero Model, you must achieve at least 7 minimum profitable days by the end of each 30-day period. The first 30-day period begins on the day of your first trade. A minimum profitable day is only counted if the day's profit is at least 0.25% of the account balance. The 30-day period resets either at the end of each cycle or upon the processing of a reward. Failure to meet this requirement by the end of any 30-day period will result in the closure of the account.
- (e). Customer shall not perform simulated FOREX Trading in violation of: (i) the operation of real financial market, (ii) the current General Terms and Conditions of Silverstone capital, (iii) the current trading rules of Silverstone capital which are available on the Responsible Trading Policy, see Appendix A.
- (f). If the customer fails to comply with the conditions specified in sections 8.a, 8.b, 8.c, 8.d and 8.e during the Evaluation Stage, the Evaluation will be marked as "not passed." In such instances, the Customer's account and Services will be terminated and canceled without any refund of the fees paid.
- (g). If the customer does not adhere to the conditions outlined in sections 8.a, 8.b and 8.e during the Master Stage, the Master account will be marked as "not passed." In such scenarios, the Customer's account and Services will be terminated and canceled without any refund of the fees paid.

(9). Rules of Demo/Simulation Trading

- (a). The account can not be inactive for more than 30 calendar days. Inactive means no trades have been executed on the account.
- (b). Profit from trades that are closed within 1 minutes after opening will not be counted on the Master account. In the event any deductions result in the breach of the daily loss limit or maximum loss limit, the Customer is responsible for the violation.
- (c). News Trading and holding over the weekend
 - (i). 1-Step, 2-Step Models: Trades can be held over the weekend. Profit from trades that are opened or closed 5 minutes prior to and after high impact news events and/or speeches on the affected currency will not be counted on the Master account UNLESS the trade was executed 5 hours prior to the news event. This restriction applies to all forms of trade execution, such as manual, pending, stop loss and take profit orders. During news speeches, the prohibited window will extend 5 minutes prior to the speech until 5 minutes after the speech has been finished. News event trading will result in the deduction of any profits made from trades executed within the restricted 10-minute window. Our system may automatically close the affected trades that are opened within the prohibited time window. Forex Factory is used as the news calendar source. In the event any deductions result in the breach of the daily loss limit or maximum loss limit, the Customer is responsible for the violation.
 - (ii). X Model: It is not allowed to hold trades during news and over the weekend. A position cannot be held or opened 5 minutes before and after a high-impact news event (10 minutes total) on the affected currency on the Master account. An open trade in this window on the affected currency will lead to a violation of the account. We use Forex Factory as our news calendar source. Also, holding a position over the weekend will result in a violation of the account.

(iii). Zero Model: It is not allowed to hold trades during news and over the weekend on the Zero account. A position cannot be held or opened 10 minutes before and after a high-impact news event (20 minutes total) on the affected currency. An open trade in this window on the affected currency or holding a position over the weekend will result in a violation of the account. We use Forex Factory as our news calendar source.

(d). Not exceeding the maximum 10 lots per day on the 1-Step, X Master accounts. The 10 lots limit per day rule means you can only open a total of 10 lots each day. If you exceed this limit, any open trades will be closed, and you won't be able to trade until the next day. This limit resets at midnight CE(S)T. If you have trades open at midnight, they count towards the next day's limit.

(e). The consistency score ensures that no single winning day accounts for an excessive percentage of your overall profit, you may continue trading until the score is met. The required consistency score varies depending on the model:

(i). X Model: 45% Consistency score;

(ii). Zero Model: 15% Consistency score.

(f). FORBIDDEN TRADING PRACTICES AND TOXIC TRADING BEHAVIOR

The following trading practices and toxic trading behaviors are prohibited during simulated trading:

(i). Any Trading activity that includes Gap trading, high frequency trading, toxic trading flow, server spamming, latency arbitrage, hedging, long short arbitrage, reverse arbitrage, tick scalping, server execution, and opposite account trading are all prohibited trading methods plus copy trading or account management by a third-party vendor will result in account termination. Keep in mind that using a third-party Expert Advisor is allowed as long as it is a trade or risk manager. Using any other third-party Expert Advisor is not allowed. This will lead to the violation of the account and the decline of your remuneration. Furthermore, Customer shall trade responsibly and not exploit the Services by performing trades without applying market standard risk management rules for trading on financial markets, this includes, among others, the following practices (i) opening substantially larger position sizes compared to Customer's other trades, whether on this or any other Customer's account, (ii) opening substantially smaller or larger number of positions compared to Customer's other trades, whether on this or any other Customer's account, or (iii) purposely trade news events. The Company reserves the right to determine, at its own discretion, whether certain trades, practices, strategies, or situations are Forbidden Trading Practices.

(ii). Excessive Risk-Taking (Over-Leveraging): Participating in trades with disproportionately high levels of risk in relation to the trader's capital or risk tolerance. This often involves utilizing excessive leverage, causing overexposure or full margin, which can magnify both gains and losses. Additionally only on the 2-Step Master account, executing excessive amounts of lots relative to the account size exceeding the Maximum Lot Exposure Limit.

Maximum Lot Exposure Limit per simulated account size for 2-Step Master accounts:

$25,000 is max 10 lots

$50,000 is max 20 lots

$100,000 is max 40 lots

If you exceed this limit, all the profits from trades that were opened and were ABOVE the limit will be deducted from the account. In the event any deductions result in the breach of the daily loss limit or maximum loss limit, the trader is responsible for the violation.

The first time we detect that the lot exposure limit was exceeded will result in a warning. The second time will result in a closure of the account, profit deduction and 30% performance commission, plus all the profits from trades that were opened and were ABOVE the limit will be deducted from the account.

- (iii). Gambling Behavior: Trading is driven by emotions rather than rational analysis, similar to gambling. Traders may pursue losses, make impulsive trades, or display addictive tendencies, leading to negative trading outcomes. Your biggest loss should not exceed 3% of the account size on the Master account only .
Splitting up a trade into multiple positions will be counted as one single trade.
- (iv). Overtrading: Continuously entering and exiting trades without a clear strategy or rationale, resulting in diminished profitability and emotional exhaustion.
- (v). High-Frequency Trading (HFT): Engaging in excessive and rapid trading activities indicative of higher volatility, which may result in significant losses.
- (vi). Arbitrage: All forms of arbitrage are considered toxic due to the lack of a clear underlying idea, strategy, or rationale. Below are two common arbitrage strategies:
 - (1). Hedge Arbitrage: Simultaneously entering opposing positions with different firms.
 - (2). Latency Arbitrage: Exploiting disparities in trade execution times across various trading platforms or venues. Traders using this strategy seek to profit from minor price differences resulting from delays in order processing or data feed.
- (vii). Poor Money Management: Traders who frequently encounter margin calls due to inadequate funds or risky positions may indicate a lack of risk management, posing a threat to their accounts and potentially the firm's stability.
- (viii). Behavioral Patterns: Inconsistent behaviors, such as trading during non-liquid market hours to exploit liquidity shortages, consistently disregarding risk management principles, or making emotional decisions.
- (ix). Reverse Trading: Signs and behavior, which includes risking the full daily loss on one trade, which often indicates reverse trading between different firms.
- (x). copy trading or account management by a third-party vendor is prohibited.
Keep in mind that using a third-party Expert Advisor is allowed as long as it is a trade or risk manager. Using any other third-party Expert Advisor is not allowed.
- (g). We can carry out casual risk assessment interviews. The purpose of these interviews is to ensure that there are no prohibited or suspicious activities on the account, including identity theft or fraud. This policy grants us the right to conduct periodic risk and compliance assessments of customer accounts to evaluate customer risk profiles, trading strategies, and behaviors. These assessments can occur every month, week, or day. Once a periodic review is initiated, we reserve the right to withhold remuneration until the risk assessment is satisfactorily completed. Users are required to participate in mandatory risk assessment interviews by providing us with answers to common questions about their trading strategies and behaviors. Failure to comply with this requirement could result in us withholding remuneration and terminating services to the Customer.

- (h). If you are suspected of engaging in any forbidden trading practices and toxic trading behavior mentioned in section 9.f, the Company may consider it as a violation of the account. The Company may terminate the contract, stop providing all services, deduct the trades, implement new restrictions, decrease leverage on a specific or any Customer's account. The Company reserves the right to determine, at its own discretion, whether certain trades, practices, strategies, or situations are Forbidden Trading Practices and Toxic Trading Behaviors.
- (i). If the Customer engages in any of the practices described in section 9.f, the Company may prevent the Customer from accessing all Services, including access to the Dashboard and Trading Platforms, without any compensation and remuneration. In such a case, the Customer is not entitled to a refund of the fees paid.

Appendix A: Responsible Trading Policy

At Silverstone capital, we are committed to providing a secure and reliable environment that fosters responsible trading practices. To achieve this, we have established an even better reward system than we already had, as well as a Responsible Trading Policy that outlines our expectations for trading activities on your accounts. All trading activities conducted on your simulated accounts must be legitimate and accompanied by common sense – as if they were copied on accounts trading in a natural environment.

Traders should use our simulated accounts with high integrity and professionalism. This means adopting prudent risk management strategies as if they were trading their personal accounts with their own funds.

Our mission is to enable genuine traders to grow personally and financially, allowing them to achieve their life goals with greater ease. Responsible trading practices are crucial for traders who want to have a successful trading career. By adopting a responsible approach to trading, you will trade with confidence and peace of mind, automatically putting yourself in an excellent position to achieve your financial goals and enjoy the many benefits that come with it.

This policy aims to educate and guide you on how to trade responsibly. It ensures that you have the necessary information to manage your accounts effectively and avoid reckless and unprofessional trading behaviour. We expect all Silverstone capital traders to approach their activities with a sense of duty, professionalism, and respect.

Responsibilities

When trading with our accounts, you must adhere to legitimate trading practices and refrain from any type of toxic trading flow, news trading, and unprofessional trading behaviors that are unsustainable in the long term and contradictory to a responsible trading approach. All Silverstone capital traders utilizing our firm's resources and accounts will adhere to the highest standards of ethical conduct. Specifically, we expect you to refrain from engaging in any activities that seek to exploit or misappropriate our resources or the accounts we provide in good faith. Additionally, we emphasize the importance of avoiding trading practices designed to manipulate the Silverstone capital evaluation process, which is intended to provide a fair and objective assessment of trading performance.

As a Silverstone capital trader, you are responsible for:

Trading with caution: A responsible trader knows that for long-term success, it's essential to trade with caution and avoid impulsive decisions, avoid trading the news and trying to purposely trading the news, News trading is forbidden and intentionally trading the news will lead to a termination since its an abuse to our Silverstone capital accounts which were given in good faith. Make informed decisions based on a sound analysis and be aware of the bigger picture, even outside the market itself.

Risk management: Avoid overtrading and overleveraging. You must apply sound risk management and have realistic expectations when engaging with the market, set your profit targets, and stop-loss levels accordingly. Adjust your position size accordingly and smartly manage your transactions; try to make use of taking partials - sometimes the market can reverse on you or go into a consolidation, and the trade will not play out as you were expecting. Excessive position sizing or risk exposure can be a detrimental strategy for traders, particularly when experiencing a string of unfavorable trades. To recover losses, traders may be tempted to take on more prominent positions, hoping for a significant winning trade. However, this approach is often driven by emotional factors rather than sound trading principles. When a trader is distressed, their decision-making is compromised, and they are more likely to abandon their strategy and risk management practices. In reality, prominent positions or the accumulation of multiple positions simultaneously is a high-risk approach that Silverstone capital do not recommend. A more conservative and risk- controlled approach is essential for achieving long-term success and avoiding financial losses. It is crucial to recognize that even experienced professionals typically adopt a small-risk strategy, which enables them to generate substantial profits in a stable and secure environment. It is essential to prioritize prudent risk management and avoid reckless trading practices that can lead to premature exits from the market. Amateur traders must avoid falling prey to impulsive decisions and focus on developing a disciplined approach to trading. By adopting a conservative mindset and employing effective risk management techniques, traders can mitigate potential losses and achieve sustained success over the long term.

Capital management and profits preservation: Take care of your accounts and use them as if trading your capital on your account. You must prioritize capital preservation when the market environment seems or tends to be much riskier than usual – uncertain market conditions should be avoided, and you should implement profits preservation measures - have an innovative and safe approach by not risking excessive profits, it is crucial to not risk more than 1% per trade, trade idea or position, your biggest losing trade shouldn't be more than 1% of the account size.

Silverstone capital offers rewards every Tuesday, meaning a reward every week, 4 - 5 monthly reward. There is no reason to engage in reckless and unprofessional trading behavior, our favourite and top traders generate roughly around 5% a month, we emphasize this approach.

Regularly review and adjust: To maintain a high level of proficiency and minimize losses, it is essential to periodically review and assess your trading performance. This process involves thoroughly examining your trading activities, including both successful and unsuccessful endeavors. By analyzing your past performance, you can identify areas for improvement, learn from your mistakes, and develop a more effective trading strategy. Regularly reviewing your trading performance enables you to refine your approach, adjust to changing market conditions, and adapt to new information. This ongoing evaluation process also helps you to develop a more nuanced understanding of your trading strengths and weaknesses, allowing you to optimize your strategy accordingly.

Moreover, it is crucial to continually reassess your risk tolerance, market exposure, and overall trading goals to ensure that your trading activities align with your objectives. By doing so, you can maintain a prudent and disciplined approach to trading, minimizing the risk of significant losses or prolonged periods of underperformance. In addition, a regular review of your trading performance allows you to refine your risk management techniques, update your market analysis, and stay informed about regulatory changes and market developments. By staying informed and adapting to changing circumstances, you can maintain a competitive edge in the markets and achieve long-term success. Ultimately, the ability to regularly review and adjust your trading strategy is a critical component of effective trading. By embracing this ongoing process, you can optimize your trading performance and minimize losses.

Compliance with the firm's rules: Traders should comply with these guidelines, and ensure that their trading activities align with responsible trading behavior. Failure to comply with these requirements may result in actions against the trader, including suspension or termination of trading privileges. All traders are responsible for being aware of and respecting our Responsible Trading Pol and as any other relevant Silverstone capital policies and procedures. By doing so, traders can maintain a high level of accountability, thereby ensuring our genuine traders of a reliable long-term collaboration with Silverstone capital.

Best Practices

When it comes to trading, it's not about getting rich quickly, but instead building a sustainable foundation for long-term success. This means adopting a disciplined approach that prioritizes patience, consistency, and careful risk management.

To ensure responsible trading practices, we recommend the following best practices:

Having clear trading plans and realistic goals while being aware of the surroundings: To navigate the complexities of the financial markets confidently, it is essential to establish a clear and well-defined trading plan. This plan should be grounded in a thorough understanding of market conditions and an awareness of global events and their potential impact on the markets. The current geopolitical landscape, where uncertainty and volatility can be felt, demands a heightened sense of vigilance and adaptability. A prudent approach to trading involves setting realistic goals carefully calibrated to the current account situation, market conditions, and prevailing circumstances. Furthermore, staying informed about global events and their potential implications for the markets is crucial. By adopting a thoughtful and informed approach to trading, traders can better navigate the markets. A clear trading plan and a deep understanding of market conditions and global events can help mitigate risk and increase the likelihood of successful trading outcomes.

Avoid gambling: When trading, adopting a responsible and professional approach is crucial. Treat your simulated accounts as if you're selling your account with your your funds - you wouldn't recklessly gamble with your funds, and you shouldn't engage in such behavior on your Silverstone capital account either. Trading is science, and gambling belongs to the casino. Trading requires a thoughtful and strategic approach. Don't get caught up in the hype of trying to get lucky in the market. Instead, make informed trades based on thorough analysis and a well-thought-out strategy. A Real trader don't rely on luck or emotions; they have a solid foundation in their approach that allows them to make profitable trades consistently. Serious traders have a deep understanding of their strategy, which gives them an edge over the market. This edge isn't just a one-time deal but a consistent advantage that allows them to generate profits over time. When trading with the Silverstone capital account, it's essential to be responsible and avoid reckless behavior. Avoid all-or-nothing strategies. Pay attention to your position size, and keep your confidence high, as this can quickly spiral out of control. It's also important to acknowledge that losses are a natural part of trading. When you experience losses, it's crucial not to let emotions get the best of you. Don't engage in revenge trading, thinking you'll recover your losses by making impulsive decisions. Instead, take a step back, reassess your strategy, and consider whether you're allowing emotions to cloud your judgment. Remember, trading is a marathon, not a sprint. It requires discipline, patience, and a long-term perspective. By adopting a responsible and professional approach, you'll be more than capable of achieving consistent positive results and, automatically, lasting success.

Choose your trading assets and get to know them: Good traders with long-term consistency do not trade dozens of trading assets – it's essential to focus on a few critical assets and get to know them. A successful trader doesn't try to trade everything under the sun - that's a recipe for disaster. Being an intelligent trader means getting to know the market you're trading, getting personal with it, learn its unique characteristics. By limiting yourself to a smaller number of assets, you can better understand how they work and respond to different market conditions. Use correlation between assets when it comes to analysis, but try not to trade everything you see. Some traders tend to trade multiple instruments to diversify their risk. However, even here, a trader may open several positions representing several instruments or currency pairs. Still, at the same time, the trader is exposed to more risk on one instrument or currency. A typical case may be opening several positions on different significant pairs. What looks like a diversified position could simply be a massive loss. Concentrating on only a few trading assets doesn't mean to ignore everything else. It's important to check different significant markets. This allows traders to identify patterns and correlations between assets, which can be incredibly valuable in their analysis. The point is to try not to get caught up in the excitement of having at your disposal many different markets and tradable assets, and jump from one to another in a chaotic way and in a short. Trading too many instruments simultaneously can lead to reckless decisions and increased risk. Some traders may try to diversify their risk by trading multiple assets, but this approach can be misleading. For example, opening various positions on different currency pairs may seem like a smart way to spread risk. Still, it can increase your exposure to losses on one particular instrument or pair. It's not uncommon for traders to get caught up in this trap and suffer a massive loss. In reality, trading multiple assets can be a double-edged sword. On one hand, it can provide diversification benefits and reduce risk. On the other hand, it can also increase the complexity of your trading strategy and make it harder to manage your positions effectively. By focusing on a few critical assets and developing a deep understanding of them, you'll be better equipped to make informed trading decisions and achieve long-term success.

Stay connected to the world: Financial literacy and strong knowledge in multiple areas is critical to making informed decisions in the market. It's crucial to stay connected to the global economy and know the latest news, trends, and events that can impact the financial markets. Don't just focus on charts and technical analysis - take a step back and consider the broader picture. Consider how historical events, current happenings, and future outlooks intersect and influence the market. It's not just about what's happening in your industry or market - stay informed about what's happening in other sectors and areas of life. For example, changes in global politics, conflicts, natural disasters, or technological breakthroughs can all affect the financial markets. By staying informed and thinking critically about the interconnectedness of these factors, you'll be better equipped to make informed decisions and adapt to changing market conditions. Remember, the financial markets are constantly evolving, and being aware of what's happening outside of your bubble is crucial to staying ahead of the curve. By staying connected and informed, you'll be better positioned to navigate the ups and downs of the market and make intelligent decisions.

Take breaks: Taking breaks in trading can't be overstated. When you're constantly bombarded with market data and your emotions run high, it's easy to make reckless decisions that can harm your performance. Overtrading and obsessing over charts can lead to a vicious cycle of impulsive decisions, ultimately sabotaging you. To avoid this pitfall, taking regular breaks to clear your head and regain your composure is essential. This isn't about being lazy or uninterested in the markets – it's about being intelligent and strategic. By stepping away from the charts and taking a break, you can reflect on your trades, see if your strategy for that day is still valid, and refocus on your goals. Trading requires mental toughness, discipline, and patience. Taking calculated breaks will help you focus better when you're back on the charts. If you feel tired or not in a sharp mental state, you can always take a break and return stronger.
